

Fernando Lopez

Fernando Lopez is a Certified Coach with over 15 years of experience designing, coaching and facilitating individual leader, team and organizational programs. He specializes in helping clients create the space for powerful collaboration. He coaches clients in Fortune 500 companies, government, and global humanitarian organizations in Latin America, Europe, and Africa.

Fernando's mission is finding often-surprising solutions to leadership and relationship challenges.

He works with leaders who believe in the transformative power of collaboration. His intention is that the changes clients make during the time they work together come not only from building additional skills, but also from growing into a whole new way of being and seeing themselves at work.

He is well known for his expertise in organization and relationship systems coaching. He is a faculty member of CRR Global and the Coaches Training Institute, an industry leader that has trained over 55,000 coaches worldwide. Motivated by discovering innovative coaching approaches and sharing them with others, he has presented his work at international conferences in North America, Europe, and New Zealand.

As a collaborative, calm, and profound listener, he has always had an ease for understanding the requirements of multiple stakeholders and building trust between groups. Prior to specializing in coaching and facilitation, he was at Medsite Inc. (now part of WebMD) where he bridged technology and business teams. As past president of the Toronto OD Network, he focused on implementing technology solutions to manage the processes of the organization.

Fernando has a dual degree in Management and Technology from the Wharton School and the School of Engineering of the University of Pennsylvania.

Having lived in Mexico, Toronto, New York, Hawaii, Munich, Brazil, and Chile, Fernando enjoys operating across cultures. He is fluent in English and Spanish, and conversational in Portuguese and German.
